

Did you solve the case of the missing trophy?

The two cricket captains return to their luxury hotel. Philip Gawthorpe to his veterinary surgery. With W.G. The photographer to his studio. And the security chief looks hopelessly around the room, thinking 'Where did the trophy go?'

However...

Less than an hour later the two cricket captains were resting in their hotel rooms, the photographer was in his studio looking at his photos on screen and the chief of security was still searching the room where the trophy had gone missing. Meanwhile, a dog, W.G. was lying on an operating table, unconscious, his belly being sewn back up by his veterinary owner. And beside him was the Ashes trophy, just 10cm high, as always, and covered in half-digested dog food...

Did you crack the case?
