

Armistice Runner by Tom Palmer

LITERACY & SPORTS RESOURCE : SPAG WORKSHEET

Text from chapter 1

FIND AND UNDERLINE IN THE TEXT BELOW

Lily accelerated, keeping her eyes on the three girls ahead of her. She was ten metres behind them and within striking distance as they climbed the muddy, water-logged path.

Time to attack.

She pushed past the first of the three leaders, a thin girl in a white vest. Now Lily was in third place.

Ahead of her were Gemma and Keeley. Older than Lily. Slower than Lily on the uphill. Chest hurting, legs hurting, everything hurting, Lily pushed herself hard.

She could hear her own lungs forcing air in and out as she passed Gemma and Keeley. And, now she had taken the lead, she knew she had her breathing right.

The ground was firmer further up the hill. Not boggy like at the start of the path. But Lily placed her feet carefully, avoiding exposed roots and rocks that could mean a slip or a twist.

Attack.

Lily knew she had to keep at it, because now she could sense who was behind her. She couldn't see her, couldn't hear her, but she knew she was there all the same.

CAN YOU SPOT THE ... ?

VERBS

PERSONAL PRONOUNS

COMMA

HYPHENATED COMPOUND WORD

ABSTRACT NOUN

PREPOSITION PHRASE

ADJECTIVES

ADVERBIAL PHRASE

PLURAL NOUN

REFLEXIVE PRONOUN

FULL STOP

PAST TENSE OF CAN

INFORMAL SENTENCE STARTER

PAST PERFECT TENSE

ANTONYM OF WRONG

COMPARATIVE ADJECTIVE

DETERMINER (SPECIFIC ARTICLE)

ADVERB

CO-ORDINATING CONJUNCTION

COMMAND

SUBORDINATING CONJUNCTION

RELATIVE PRONOUN

CO-ORDINATING CONJUNCTION

IDIOM

Armistice Runner by Tom Palmer

LITERACY & SPORTS RESOURCE : SPAG WORKSHEET

Text from chapter 1 continued

FIND AND UNDERLINE IN THE TEXT BELOW

Abbie Granger. Arms pumping like an unhinged windmill, running on Lily's shoulder, waiting for her moment to overtake.

After pushing so hard up the hill, Lily was struggling to breathe evenly now. Beyond her comfort zone. She heard a voice in her head as she stared across the high open moor to the other side of the valley.

It's only a training run, the voice said. Save your best for the big race.

It was true, Lily thought. This, after all, was only a training run. The last training run before the first big fell race of the season. One that Lily would be racing. And one that Abbie would race too. In the Lake District village where Lily's gran and granddad lived. That was the important run, not this one.

Lily felt a crosswind ripple over the surface of the moor. The ground beneath her feet changed again to soft wet wild grass, damp working its way into her fell shoes.

CAN YOU SPOT THE ... ?

- SIMILE
- CO-ORDINATING CONJUNCTION
- INFINITIVE VERB
- CO-ORDINATING CONJUNCTION
- PAST PROGRESSIVE VERB
- JARGON
- PREPOSITIONS
- COMMON NOUN
- OMISSION APOSTROPHE
- SUPERLATIVE
- INDIRECT SPEECH
- DETERMINER (GENERAL ARTICLE)
- RELATIVE PRONOUN
- HOMOPHONE OF TO & TWO
- POSSESSIVE APOSTROPHE
- SIMPLE PAST VERBS
- COMPOUND WORD
- SYNONYM OF SOIL
- SUBORDINATE CLAUSE
- POSSESSIVE PRONOUN

Armistice Runner by Tom Palmer

LITERACY & SPORTS RESOURCE : TEACHER'S NOTES

It is suggested that the accompanying powerpoint is read through in class first.

Warm up questions

Does anyone take part in running / athletics for the school or outside of school?

What sort of running competitions can you do (track, sprinting, cross country, fell running)

What are fells? (big hills)

Where is the Lake District? (find it on a map)

Has anyone read anything by Tom Palmer before?

What genre is this? (fiction-sport)

What narrative is this and how do we know? (third person, She ...)

Armistice Runner by Tom Palmer

LITERACY & RUNNING RESOURCE : SPAG TEACHER'S VERSION WITH ANSWERS UNDERLINED

Text from chapter 1

Lily accelerated, keeping her eyes on the three girls ahead of her. She was ten metres behind them and within striking distance as they climbed the muddy, water-logged path.

Time to attack.

She pushed past the first of the three leaders, a thin girl in a white vest. Now Lily was in third place. Ahead of her were Gemma and Keeley. Older than Lily. Slower than Lily on the uphills. Chest hurting, legs hurting, everything hurting, Lily pushed herself hard.

She could hear her own lungs forcing air in and out as she passed Gemma and Keeley. And, now she had taken the lead, she knew she had her breathing right.

The ground was firmer further up the hill. Not boggy like at the start of the path. But Lily placed her feet carefully, avoiding exposed roots and rocks that could mean a slip or a twist.

Attack.

Lily knew she had to keep at it, because now she could sense who was behind her. She couldn't see her, couldn't hear her, but she knew she was there all the same.

VERBS

PERSONAL PRONOUNS

COMMA

HYPHENATED COMPOUND WORD

ABSTRACT NOUN

PREPOSITION PHRASE

ADJECTIVES

ADVERBIAL PHRASE

PLURAL NOUN

REFLEXIVE PRONOUN

FULL STOP

PAST TENSE OF CAN

INFORMAL SENTENCE STARTER

PAST PERFECT TENSE

ANTONYM OF WRONG

COMPARATIVE ADJECTIVE

DETERMINER (SPECIFIC ARTICLE)

ADVERB

CO-ORDINATING CONJUNCTION

COMMAND

SUBORDINATING CONJUNCTION

RELATIVE PRONOUN

CO-ORDINATING CONJUNCTION

IDIOM

Armistice Runner by Tom Palmer

LITERACY & RUNNING RESOURCE : SPAG TEACHER'S VERSION WITH ANSWERS UNDERLINED

Text from chapter 1

Abbie Granger. Arms pumping like an unhinged windmill ,	SIMILE running on Lily's shoulder, waiting for her	CO-ORDINATING CONJUNCTION moment to overtake .	INFINITIVE VERB
After pushing so hard up the hill, Lily was	CO-ORDINATING CONJUNCTION
struggling to breathe evenly now. Beyond her	PAST PROGRESSIVE VERB
comfort zone . She heard a voice in her head as she	JARGON
stared across the high open moor to the other side	PREPOSITIONS
of the valley .	COMMON NOUN
It's only a training run, the voice said. Save	OMISSION APOSTROPHE your best for the big race.	SUPERLATIVE
It was true , Lily thought. This, after all, was	INDIRECT SPEECH only a training run. The last training run before the	DETERMINER (GENERAL ARTICLE)
first big fell race of the season. One that Lily would	RELATIVE PRONOUN be racing. And one that Abbie would race too . In the	HOMOPHONE OF TO & TWO
Lake District village where Lily's gran and granddad	POSSESSIVE APOSTROPHE
lived . That was the important run, not this one.	SIMPLE PAST VERBS
Lily felt a crosswind ripple over the surface	COMPOUND WORD of the moor. The ground beneath her feet changed	SYNONYM OF SOIL
again to soft wet wild grass, damp working its way	SUBORDINATE CLAUSE into her fell shoes.	POSSESSIVE PRONOUN

