

After the War by Tom Palmer published 7 May 2020

Cut out and decorate these paper dolls to remember the 300 Windermere children who arrived in the English Lake District after their liberation from the concentration camps. Here are some ideas:

- colour them as children like the friends in After the War : Yossi, Leo and Mordecai
- add words of kindness you'd like to say to them to welcome them
- make a display of them holding hands against a backdrop of Cumbrian mountains and lakes.
- colour them in as adults - what do you think they might grow up to do? (The real Windermere children grew up to have fulfilling lives as teachers, electricians, dentists and one even represented Britain in the Olympics).

Challenge: decorate all 300 Windermere children!
